PARTING SHOT. Michael McCormack of Lucerne Drive shakes with his pet poodle, "Cherry," as he prepared to answer the school bell this morning. After a summer of fun together, boy and his pet had to part. To make matters worse, as far as "Cherry" is concerned, all dogs must be restrained during hours when children will be going to and from schools, under a new town bylaw.

Computer Voting In Primary On Tuesday

A total of 11,247 voters will be eligible to vote in Andover in the state primary election Tuesday, Sept. 15 at the town's six polling places, with the independent, or undeclared, voters holding the upper hand.

Voting hours will be from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m., with a change in one polling place. Precinct one voters, instead of casting ballots at the Central Fire station, will vote at the William A. Doherty elementary school on Bartlet street.

Andover being a traditionally strong Republican community, will have 4,042 enrolled in that party eligible for the primary. There are 2,570 Democrats.

In the undeclared category are 4,634 voters.

These figures were established following the completion of new registrations on Aug. 15, according to Town Clerk Eldon R. Salter.

In addition to the precinct one, Doherty school voting location, other polling places are: precinct two, basement of the Andover Baptist church, Central street; precinct three, Sacred Heart school, Shawsheen; precinct four, Grange Hall, Shawsheen road; precinct five, Community building, Ballardvale and precinct six, Peabody House, Phillips Academy.

Voting will again be by computer card. Instructors will be available at the polls for those not familiar with the process.

The system includes obtaining of a punch card from the clerks, placing the card into a stand. Candidates names are adjacent to the card. Voter selection is made by using a stylus to perforate the spot next to the candidate's name.

Election officials have been holding meetings to insure that the system will run smoothly. The electronic voting system is aimed at speeding up the process

Warrant In This Issue

The warrant for the town meeting scheduled for Monday, Oct. 5, appears in this week's issue of the TOWNSMAN.

The articles to be acted upon will be found on Page 8.

The Finance committee is currently examining the articles and will make recommendations prior to the session. The FinCom must approve money articles in order to allow action on the town meeting floor, according to town bylaws.

Musgrove To Get A Face Lifting

Major changes are contemplated for the Musgrove Building by its new owners, who will spend in excess of $250,000 in renovations to the 75-year-old building.

Atty. Michael J. Batal, Jr., one of the new owners, reported this week that seven or eight prime tenants are considering occupancy there, once the building is renovated.

Channel Building Co. of Park street, also a part owner of the building will do the work on the building.

The new owners intend to talk with the planning board and other town officials, in order to develop the overall area in keeping with the town and to see what can be done to improve the building and its surroundings.

Accompanying the sale of the building is the road around the building, Post Office Avenue, which the new owners want to improve.

Work is already underway in the building, with temporary repairs having been made to the roof area which collapsed June 7. Atty. Batal and his group acquired the building in late July from the former owner, Samuel Resnik.

A new elevator will be installed in the building, Atty. Batal said, and the first two floors are expected to be ready for use within five months.

Basic plans call for taking the existing building and changing the front somewhat through the use of glass, bronze and trim.

Channel, which will do the work, remodeled a building on Essex street in Lawrence, using much the same concept.

The interior work being done at present is considered to be priming work, getting the building ready for the total renovation.

Atty. Batal said there would be constructive changes in the building by the end of this month and that displaced tenants, forced out by the June roof collapse,

Local Man On Hijacked Airliner

An Andover man was among the hundreds being held hostage in the Jordanian desert as a result of two more planes being hijacked Tuesday.

Richard Morse, 47, 3 Glenwood Road, an economist with the Peace Corps, was aboard a TWA Boeing 707 jet which was diverted to the desert near Aman, where he was being held by Palestinian guerrillas.

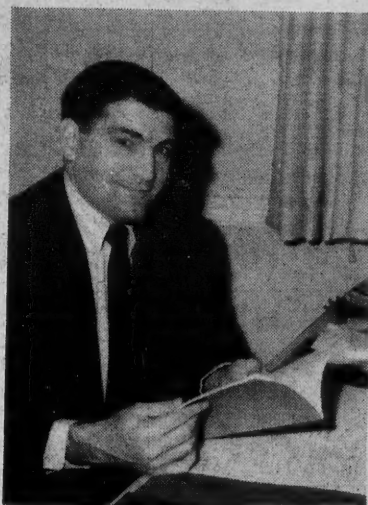

Morse had been in India for the past ten weeks working with the government assisting industrial development. He boarded the plane in Bombay Sunday for a return home.

His wife, Romola, son David, 16 and daughter, Sunite, 11, have been staying with his parents in Woodsville, N.H. during his special assignment in India.

Mrs. Morse reported that she had received a call from the state department notifying her that her husband, along with the other hostages were all safe, had been fed and were in good spirits.

Prior to his assignment with the Peace Corps, Morse had served as senior economist with the Stanford Research Institute and the Ford Foundation.

His Assumptions Were Correct

Dr. Kenneth R. Seifert

Initial assumptions about Andover strengthened by a year of experience here, Dr. Kenneth R. Seifert, superintendent of schools, moves into his second year this week looking toward the future and mapping a course for Andover's public education.

Dr. Seifert succeeded Edward I. Erickson a year ago this summer.

"When I first came to Andover, I did not know too much about the town. I met the students and staff and was impressed. I had heard a lot about Andover and made assumptions as I began my duties here.

"After a year, those assumptions have proven correct and I am impressed with the general wisdom of the townspeople, something not common in other communities," the administrator said this week.

Among his impressions are such organizations as A.V.I.S., conservation groups, interested in preserving land and open areas in the town.

Also, "The certain amount of deliberateness which the town de-

Two Andover young men are among the 1,410 cadets entering the U. S. Air Force Academy class of 1974.

Beginning classes at the Colorado campus are Brian T. Fitzpatrick, son of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Fitzpatrick, 24 Bellevue Road and Robert S. Whitton, son of Mr. and Mrs. James F. Whitton, Jr., 41 Enmore St.

Both were accepted into the cadet wing, following completion of seven weeks of basic training, including field training at a simulated front line combat base near the academy, strenuous physical conditioning and survival instruction.

Both are graduates of Andover High school, Fitzpatrick in 1969 when he was a member of the cross country team and Whitton with the class of 1970.

This is the largest class to enter the 16-year-old academy and brings the current enrollment to more than 4000.

The cadets begin a four-year course of study leading to an Air Force commission and a bachelor of science degree with an academic major in one of 27 fields of interest provided in the curriculum.

Cabbage Being Harvested

Two heads are better than one! This is especially true when we are talking about cabbage. This week, according to the Massachusetts Department of Agriculture, many of the large food markets will be featuring cabbage at their produce counters.

Our local farmers are now harvesting an excellent crop of cabbage. In fact, it is in surplus supply right now and is selling for 12 to 19 cents a pound at latest report.

Cabbage originally grew wild in various parts of Europe. From its wild state, the cabbage has been brought to its present state of perfection very gradually, by careful selection under cultivation. Three groups of cabbage are seen on the produce counter -- the green smooth leaved, the crinkly leaved Savoy and Red Cabbage. Chinese cabbage actually resembles celery, and is not considered to be a member of the cabbage family. The green cabbage is the one most familiar to us.

It lends itself to such a variety of combinations, that we may use it several times a week throughout the year, and not tire of it. Good heads of cabbage are firm or hard, heavy for their size, with crisp leaves. The outer leaves should be free from serious blemishes. These outer or "wrapper leaves" are usually discarded, but too many blemished leaves cause extra waste. Cook fresh cabbage the shortest time possible and use very little water to save its high nutritive value.

Never over-cook cabbage, because the flavor gets strong and it loses its crisp texture. The cooking time in a saucepan should be only 3 to 10 minutes for shredded cabbage of different varieties.

Try this new way to make cole slaw. You'll find it different and delicious.

Golden Cole Slaw:

1/2 head cabbage, shredded, 3 large tablespoons salad dressing, 1 teaspoon mustard, 1 teaspoon chopped pimiento, 1/4 teaspoon sugar, 1/4 teaspoon salt. Mix all ingredients in large bowl and serve cold. Serves 4.

A REVIEW. Members of the Spanish class at Andover High school met this week to review, by slides, their trip to Spain this summer. Among those who made the trip are, left to right, Miss Margaret Romeo, Charles Cataldo, Mrs. Dorothy Goclowski, teacher and Miss Ann Jacobson.

Police Seize Alleged Drug Plant Growth

Drug charges against Andover youths were heard in Lawrence District Court last week, and in one case, led to a confiscation of a quantity of alleged marijuana being grown in a back yard. Arrested by state police were David P. McEvoy, 21, 6 Wild Rose Drive, charged with being in possession of marijuana, and Karen M. DeGregoria, 18, 73 Chestnut St., charged with being in company of a person in possession of marijuana.

When state police made their investigation at the West Andover address, they found eight trees, seven to nine feet in height growing in the back yard. Police said the trees were marijuana plants and uprooted them and sent them to the state police laboratory for testing.

McEvoy was further charged with cultivating and growing marijuana.

State investigators said the trees were the largest they had seen anywhere.

Both defendants pleaded not guilty, appearing before Special Justice Paul J. Perocchi. Their cases were continued for hearing to Sept. 11. McEvoy was held in $1,000 bail and the girl in $5,000 surety.

James Martin of the Criminal Investigation Bureau of the state police conducted the investigation assisted by Donald Crocker, Gilbert S. Frechette and Richard McDonald of the bureau.

In another drug case, James Gilbert, 21, of 1 Lewis St., was charged in Lawrence District Court with illegal possession of a drug, LSD, and receiving stolen property, a tape recorder.

Appearing before Special Justice Paul J. Perocchi, the defendant had his case continued for hearing to Sept. 21. Bail in the amount of $1,000 was ordered on each count.

To Take School Census

A census of school age children will begin this week according to state law, (Chapter 70, Section 5 and Chapter 72, Sections 2 and 2A) under the direction of the Andover Public schools.

The purpose of the census is to enable the Superintendent of Schools to file with the Commissioner of Education a report of the number of minor children whose parents or guardians are residents of the town and who were enrolled on October first in the following schools -- public, private, vocational and regional -- kindergarten through grade twelve. Children attending other than local schools will be included.

A pre-school census will be taken, at the same time, to be used as a guide to school authorities.

The census takers for each Precinct are as follows:

Precinct one - Mrs. Bettianne McIntyre, 1 Carisbrooke St. and Mrs. Virginia Butcher, 4 Washington Avenue.

Precinct two - Mrs. Elizabeth Serbagi, 53 Wildwood Road.

Precinct three - Mrs. Leonard Gardner, 18 Ivy Lane.

Precinct four - Mrs. Florence Jameson, 61 Greenwood Road and Mrs. Eileen Deyermund, 64 Andover St.

Precinct five - Mrs. Ann Dorrick, 11 Prospect Road.

Precinct six - Mrs. Rose White, 27 Bartlet St.

More than 1,000 jobless or underemployed persons will get classroom-type training in environmental control occupations through projects announced by the U.S. Department of Labor and Health, Education, and Welfare. Training covers such occupations as water and sewage plant operator, water and waste-water technician, fire prevention specialist, reforestation and timber stand improvement aide. Classroom instruction runs from 2 to 50 weeks, depending on the occupation.

Bedbugs Mysterious Insects

Man's nocturnal companion, the bedbug, still thrives.

In our super-sanitary era, one sometimes forgets these acquaintances of long ago. Although it has slipped down the social scale since Chaucer's age when it was the companion of crowned heads as well as varlets, the bedbug liveth on, plentifully.

The most unusual thing about the bedbug lies not in the fact that it seldom reaches any social pinnacle today beyond the confines of flophouses, but that its origin long has puzzled scientists.

Man, in case you missed the point at school, is a rather recent invention on the biological scale of time. On the other hand, the varmint we call a bedbug is a rather ancient critter. Somehow, the bedbug got along very well before there either were men or beds. The question is: how did the present partnership arise?

What heightens the mystery is the fact that the bedbug did not travel the avenue that one might expect: it did not evolve with the creature that eventually became man. Most parasites are very choosy about their hosts. They started out with a species in dim prehistory and as that species evolved into other species, the parasite evolved along with it. But that the bedbug did not travel that route seems substantiated by the fact that no other ape -- pardon, no other primate -- except man cohabits with bedbugs.

The Czechoslovakian zoologist Dalibor Povolny of the College of Agriculture in Brno recently suggested a probable route that may have led to the bedbug's habit of puncturing human hide. Povolny is a well-known student of parasites that afflict man.

Archaeological evidence points to man and his pre-human ancestors as primates that dwelled in caves. Common companions of man in caves were bats. Povolny's research indicates that eons ago one of the parasites of bats found humans juicy and became the bedbug.

Such a transfer from one host to another is unusual behavior for parasites. While Povolny cannot pinpoint where the transfer occurred, he does know that it happened in the Old World. For our familiar bedbug belongs to a species that lives upon Old World bats. The New World bats have a quite different form of parasite from the same group. It bears little resemblance to the bedbug whereas our bed-linen friend and the bats' companion have retained enough identical anatomy that both belong to the same genus, indicating that they are at least cousins.

In a report published in the British journal, Animals, Povolny commented: "It is almost certain that man acquired the bedbug from bats which roosted in the caves which he inhabited during the final stages of his evolution in the Pleistocene period... We shall probably never know just when bedbugs decided that men tasted sufficiently like bats for their blood to make an acceptable meal."

Since the period immediately preceding World War II, the number of women workers has more than doubled, but the number of working mothers has increased almost eightfold. About 4 out of 10 mothers were in the labor force in March 1969, compared with less than 1 out of 10 in 1940.

Museum Has Bee Display

Some 25,000 bees engaged in producing offspring, honey, and a general air of bee-busyness have been reinstated at Boston's Museum of Science for visitors of all ages to view at close range.

With the installation in a new location of one of the Museum's most popular exhibits, the public once again has a front row seat for a fascinating performance by the insect world's hardest working citizens.

Approximately five pounds of the industrious little creatures are now on display in a specially constructed observation hive in the Lyman Library on the Museum's third floor.

Behind glass, the bees perform their assorted tasks, coming and going through an ingenious window arrangement which permits them to leave the colony for gathering purposes and to return for manufacturing.

They make endless flights to the trees and flowers of the Boston Common, the Public Garden, Beacon Hill, and anywhere else nearby where pollen and nectar is to be collected. Then they return to the hive to build the chambers of their honeycomb, rear their young, and make honey.

Veteran beekeeper Harold Stevens of (164 Conant Road) Weston, an amateur naturalist, who has stocked the Museum's hive for the past five years, managed the installation.

Brilliantly spotlighted, the observation hive presents an amazing example of efficient social organization. There is the single queen bee, longer than the others and marked with a bright red spot on her thorax for easy identification by visitors; her only job is laying eggs.

Then there are the drones or males -- smaller than the queen -- who do no work at all, and whose function is to mate with the queen. Last, there are the thousands of infertile female workers who build the hive, keep it clean, guarded and ventilated, tend the young, and collect the pollen and nectar for food.

The bee exhibit also features in another case a different type of comb, an "open-air" wild honeybee comb which was removed from a tree. In addition, a "bee-box," used by honey hunters to trap wild honeybees, is shown. After the insects feed on bait inside such boxes, they are released. They then follow a straight line back to the bee tree and reveal its location. Hence the expression "beeline."

There might be about 15 million clerical workers in the United States by 1975, Labor Department studies indicate. In 1968, there were 13 million clerical workers, with secretaries and stenographers comprising the largest group of office workers. This group numbered more than 2.5 million.

Under Federal law, teenagers 18 or older may work at any job, and teenagers between 16 and 18 may work at most jobs, other than the few covered by Hazardous Occupations Orders.

Seminary Begins New Year

A new school year began Tuesday at St. Francis Seraphic and High School, River Road, with a concelebrated Mass of the Holy Spirit offered by the new Rector-Principal, Rev. Luke M. Ciampi, O.F.M.

St. Francis Seraphic Seminary is the Seraphic, or Minor Seminary, of the Franciscan Province of the Immaculate Conception. Young men who feel they may be called to the religious life and the Franciscan Priesthood pursue their high school studies at the local institution before going on to higher and more specialized training.

With the universal decline in vocations and the closing of many Catholic high schools, the Provincial superiors decided three years ago to make the existing facilities of St. Francis Seminary available also to a restricted number of non-seminarian day students from Andover, Tewksbury and Lowell. Each year since, the enrollment of non-seminarians has increased slightly. At a recent Chapter of the Province it was decided to continue the experiment indefinitely, or until conditions change. The first day enrollment for the current school year includes some 25 seminarians and some 45 non-seminarians.

The recently concluded Chapter of the Province resulted in some changes of personnel on the administration level. The former superior, Fr. John Capistran Di Mauro, O.F.M., stepped down from his office of local government on being elected a Definitor in the Provincial government. He is succeeded as Guardian by Fr. Januarius Izzo, O.F.M., J.C.D., M. Re.Ed. Fr. Januarius, a native of Catskill, N.Y., majored in Canon Law at the Franciscan Pontifical Academy, the Antonianum, in Rome and in Religious Education at Emmanuel College, Boston.

Succeeding Fr. Columban Leonard, O.F.M., as Rector, Fr. Luke

M. Ciampi, O.F.M., holds a Master of Arts in English and Comparative Literature from Columbia University and a Master of Education in Administration and Supervision from Duquesne University, as well as an honorary degree of Lector General in Letters awarded by the Minister General of the Franciscan Order. He is a native of Cambridge.

The new Vice Rector and Dean of Students is Fr. Alexander Giunta, O.F.M., a native of Boston. Fr. Alexander is currently working on his degree in Music at the Boston Conservatory. He is also musical director for the Salem, N.H., Interfaith Choir.

Approved by the Andover Public School Board, St. Francis Seraphic and High School conforms to the school calendar of that public school district. Classes began on Wednesday.

The combination of minor seminary and modified or restricted high school under one roof is a relatively new concept, approved by the Bishop's Committee on seminary education and formation. Fr. Luke, who taught at St. Francis Seminary from 1937 to 1944, at Cardinal Hayes High School, Bronx, N.Y., from 1944 to 1961, and at Serra High School, McKeesport, Pa., which he founded in 1961, returned to a teaching post at the seminary in 1967.

The new Rector-Principal plans to introduce regular interscholastic athletics on a small scale to implement the intra-mural programs already in existence. To realize this goal and also to develop the curricular and extra-curricular facilities a Parents' organization is in the process of being formed. It will be called initially Posh -- i.e., Parents' Organization for School Help.

Pinto

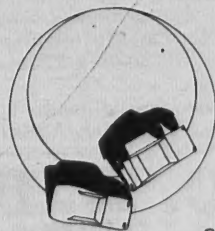

The Little Long Distance Car From

We call it "little" because Pinto is sized right down with the economy imports. Yet Pinto offers an amazing amount of room inside for four adults. And to top it off, Pinto has more knee and headroom in back than some cars 2½ feet longer.

We call it "long-distance" because it's built to run a long, long way. A long way between gas stops, service intervals. And a long way between repair bills. Even a long way between styling changes.

1600 cc. low-cal long-distance runner. Pinto's 1600 cc. engine is made from Ford's revolutionary formula for lightweight cast iron, the most reliable engine material we know of. It's water-cooled for maximum cooling efficiency (maximum efficiency in heating, defrosting, too), and mounted in front for good handling. It averaged over 25 miles per gallon in simulated city/suburban driving. And it delivers 75 hp.

Rack-and-pinion steering like great road cars.

For positive and precise response with minimum effort, Pinto has a rack-and-pinion steering system — something you won't find in any other American car. And what's more, the Pinto steering gear is lubricated for the life of the car. Pinto's turning circle is also 2½ feet shorter than that of the leading economy import.

How to drive into a park. Pinto can turn on a dime, and has an overall length of 13½ feet. It gives you a handling advantage you'll welcome when maneuvering on narrow streets and in heavy traffic. Parking will be a breeze. You'll discover that you can wheel into tight parking spaces most cars have to pass up.

The inside story. Pinto is big where it counts—on the inside. Front passengers get 6.6 inches more shoulder room than the leading import. More headroom in back. And you get thoughtful standards like the Uni-Lock Harness.

Easy in...easy out.

Extra-wide Pinto doors are designed for maximum get-in-and-out-ability. Wide door openings give you more clearance in front and in back than you get in the leading import.

A two-pod instrument panel with warning lights makes driving even simpler.

Theologian Merrimack Lecturer

On Sunday evening, September 20, at 8 p.m., Rev. Bernard Haring, C.S.S.R., will lecture at Merrimack College on the subject of "Authority and Obedience." The lecture is the first in a series of five entitled: "Student Responsibility." The series is sponsored by the Arlington Trust Company. Father Haring enjoys an international reputation as Professor of Moral Theology at the Academia Alfonsiana in Rome. This will be Fr. Haring's second visit to Merrimack where he lectured two years ago. Most recently, he delivered the keynote address to some 5,000 participants at the 24th Annual New England Congress of Religious Education in Providence, Rhode Island.

Fr. Haring has been Visiting Professor at Union Theological Seminary in New York, Temple and Villanova Universities in the Greater Philadelphia area. He has also lectured at Princeton Theological Seminary and Yale Divinity School. The lecturer is best known for his three volume work, The Law of Christ, an in-depth study of contemporary moral problems. His book, The Christian Existentialist, is a collection of lectures delivered at New York University. He has written a work, Shalom which offers a keen psychological and theological analysis of penance as a sacrament of reconciliation. Road To Renewal is a study of modern development in Roman Catholicism in the wake of Vatican Council II. His book, Christian Maturity, is a contemporary analysis of the spiritual life. In addition, Fr. Haring writes numerous articles for theological journals and has contributed essays to books which deal with the theme of Christian ethics.

The lecture will be given in the Chapel of Christ the Teacher at Merrimack College, North Andover. The lectures, sponsored by the Department of Religious Studies, are made possible through a generous grant of the Arlington Trust Company. All students from area schools are admitted free of charge. There is a minimal admission fee of one dollar for area residents. Tickets and information may be obtained from the Department of Religious Studies.

J. Lawrence Burkholder, the Victor S. Thomas Professor of Divinity at Harvard University will discuss "Discipleship or Civil Religion" on October 13.

The Editor-in-Chief of the National Review, William F. Buckley, Jr. will lecture on "The Responsibility of the Student" November 10.

Town and private tree firms have completed work on beautifying the municipal parking area. The town tree department has been working in the area removing two dead trees, and trimming others.

On private property, where trees needed attention, private tree firms were brought in by the property owners to make the necessary treatment to the trees, such as trimming, etc.

The property owners agreed to do the work when plans were announced to do the work in the parking lot.

As for prospective tenants, he was unable to say at the moment since negotiations are in progress. He did note, however, that the new owners were negotiating with, "substantial, intriguing tenants who should blend in beautifully with Andover."

At the time of the roof collapse in June, the building was occupied mostly on the first floor. A grill, sandwich shop, shoe store, photography shop and loan office were located there.

The second floor had an office and a dance studio and V.F.W. hall occupied the third floor.

Most of the tenants have since relocated.

Seriously Injured In Crash

A Shrewsbury woman was under treatment at Lawrence General hospital Wednesday for serious injuries received in an accident on Route 495 early Sunday morning.

Rita Pellegrino, 21, 36 Dewey Road, Shrewsbury, was admitted to the hospital after the car in which she was a passenger, struck a car parked by the side of the road near the High Plain road bridge.

Susan J. Hesselton, 20, of Worcester, operator of the vehicle, was also injured and admitted to the hospital.

According to police, the automobile was in contact with a car owned by David Bellenger, Heritage Trailer Apartments, West Brookfield.

Bellenger was asleep in the car, and he and his daughter were also treated at the hospital.

The impact of the crash spun the Hesselton car around, winding up in the opposite direction of the traffic flow.

Over $20 million may be spent in the Merrimack Valley in the coming year in new or expanded long-term health care facilities, such as nursing homes, it was announced by Donald A. P. Douglass, president of the Merrimack Valley Health Planning Council. Construction has not started on any of the facilities because of delays in obtaining the necessary approvals from various state agencies. The projects are to be built in Chelmsford, Methuen, Tyngsboro, Tewksbury, Billerica, Groveland, North Andover, Lowell, Amesbury, and Haverhill.

MVHPC has received 17 applications to build a total of approximately 1,280 long-term care beds, with a total cost estimated by MVHPC officials as $16,000,000. The majority of these beds would be in the nursing home category, with some being in rest home category. Sponsorship for the majority of the proposals is by private, proprietary corporations. In addition, MVHPC is also reviewing the application of the Tewksbury State Hospital, which has announced plans to build an additional 600 beds at the chronic disease hospital. The projected cost of the addition is given by state officials as $6,500,000.

The applications for construction of new facilities come at a time of change in the field of long-term care in Massachusetts, Mr. Douglass reported. The state's Department of Public Health, which has licensing authority over nursing homes and similar facilities, has formally proposed new rules and regulations which would establish four types of long-term care facilities which would provide four different levels of care. The four levels are Intensive Nursing and Rehabilitative Care, Skilled Nursing Care, Supportive Nursing Care, and Resident Care. At present, virtually all long-term care facilities are classified as Nursing Homes. This leads to confusion on the part of the public since there is no definite way to determine the level of care that each institution presently offers. In addition, reimbursement to some institutions is occasionally made incorrectly because the financiers of care, such as Medicaid, are unable to determine the precise level of care given in each facility.

The proposed regulations call for more professional staffing of the facilities, and for more stringent record-keeping on the part of all homes. In addition, the proposed rules specify many items of service that the facilities must provide in order to be reimbursed at the highest possible rate. For example, all facilities qualified as Intensive or Skilled Nursing Care Facilities must provide at least four hours of service every week by a qualified dietician for each 40 bed unit. Similarly, all units seeking the designation of Intensive Nursing Care are required to retain a qualified social worker on a full time basis. The proposed rules are receiving considerable support from various organizations representing the elderly, but are the subject of criticism from several quarters of the nursing home industry, which contends that many of the rules will result in higher costs and increased shortages of personnel, Mr. Douglass reported.

The actions taken by MVHPC in regard to the proposals for new construction will be watched closely by several agencies and institutions. The Department of Public Health has published figures which indicate that the Merrimack Valley has a surplus of nursing home beds. They have discouraged any new construction of additional beds. On the other hand, many physicians and hospital officials interviewed by MVHPC officials state that they have a steady backlog of patients waiting to be transferred from hospitals to nursing homes, but that there are not enough beds available to accommodate them. A recent survey taken by MVHPC shows that approximately 90 percent of the region's nursing home beds are constantly filled.

MVHPC officials state that there may be merit to both sides of the question. It appears to be correct that more facilities are needed in the region because most are filled. However, there is the possibility that some patients presently in the area's nursing homes do not need to be in facilities which provide as high a level of care as most nursing homes do today. MVHPC officials report that they are examining the subject in relation to several questions; a) The immediate investment of $20 million in health facilities in the Valley can be of significant value to the people. If not invested now, will that money be available several years from now? b) Are existing nursing homes being utilized properly now? c) How many existing nursing home beds will be outmoded in the next few years? d) If no new facilities are built, where will the ever increasing numbers of people requiring care find that care? e) What are the true bed needs of the Valley? f) Is this the best health investment for this community?

MVHPC has developed good working relationships with the Department of Public Health, and officials are confident that agreements will be reached shortly.

Y Plans Tennis Program

The Andover YMCA is now accepting enrollments for an abbreviated fall tennis program to be conducted on the Pearson Courts of Phillips Academy. A five week program will begin the week of Sept. 21. Only tennis class enrollment is being accepted at this time. General registration for fall term activities will take place in the week beginning Sept. 21.

Youth instruction classes will be scheduled on Mondays beginning Sept. 21 under instructor Barbara Moody, open to boys and girls 10 years of age and up. A beginners' class will be conducted 4:30 - 5:30 p.m. and an intermediate class from 3:30 - 4:30 p.m. Children will enroll in the class they consider themselves qualified for and the instructor may request transfer according to ability demonstrated.

A women's instruction class will be offered on five Wednesdays beginning Sept. 23, 9 - 10:15 a.m. and an informal play period for women will be scheduled on the same days from 10:15 - 11:30 a.m., both under instructor Bunny Milliken.

Other instruction or informal play periods will be scheduled on request if enough individuals are interested and groups will be served if the request is made at the YMCA.

Twenty-four constructions in nickel stainless steel, erected by the American sculptor George Rickey, were exhibited recently in the Boymans-van Beuningen museum in Holland. The main exhibit was two 49-foot rectangular stainless steel arms that rock gently in the breeze on a 20-foot-tall pylon. To guard against accidents, Rickey had an engineer check the balance of the structure.

Toys For Cleaner Air

By Polly Bradley

For his fifth birthday, my son Scott got an Etch-A-Sketch, one of those little drawing boards with metal dust inside . . . you turn the knobs to make an unseen little finger touch the dust and etch a picture in it.

Scott found that he could make an interesting pattern going up and across, then down and across, repeating all the way across the board.

"That looks like a factory with a lot of smokestacks," I said.

"It's a factory," said Scott.

"But it doesn't make pollution! It makes polluted air into clean air."

I perked up my ears. "It does?"

"See these smokestack parts?" he said. "They suck in the pollution, and the factory makes it into clean air."

"How does it do it?" I asked, intrigued.

"There are all sorts of gears inside . . . little gears that aren't connected . . . and when the pollution comes in, they get connected, and they squeeze out all the pollution."

"Then all the pollution turns into clean air."

"And then it lives happily ever after."

As you can tell, Scott's Daddy had just been telling him how the gears in a car work. Guess Scott figured an anti-pollution factory would work the same way.

After a while, under duress, Scott let Randy, his seven-year-old brother, play with the new Etch-A-Sketch.

Randy was not to be outdone. He'd seen the curiosity with which I listened to Scott's story, and he was determined to do him one better. Typical little loving sibling.

Randy immediately made a factory, complete with many smokestacks . . . a few more smokestacks than Scott's factory had had, naturally.

"See this machine?" Randy said.

"First of all you push this button and all the dirty air in the universe comes in . . ."

"SSSSSLURP . . ."

"Then you push this button, and the whole universe comes out again, and it's clean as anything."

"You never saw such a clean thing."

"It's even cleaner than a shiny car made out of gold."

Well, the kids may not have all the right methods, but at least they have the right goals.

And I have a feeling that that's the way it is with some of the young people in their teens and twenties who are on an environmental kick right now.

They may not have all the right methods, but they do have the right goals.

Give them a few more years, and they'll figure out some better methods . . . and maybe we'll have a clean and unpolluted world some day.

Co-op Representatives At Maryland Institute

The University of Maryland, Adult Education Center just outside the Nation's capitol was the site of the 41st Annual Co-Op Institute held last week.

The program is designed to develop leadership for the local cooperative and promote cooperation among cooperatives. Representing the Andover Co-Op at this year's session were Robert Robinson, Dairy and Frozen Food Manager and his wife Shiela, and Harry Bedell, vice president.

Representatives of consumer cooperatives, housing cooperative, group health associations and credit unions met for study, seminars, and discussions on such subjects as "The History and Fundamentals of Cooperatives," "Improving Customer Relations," "Effective Communications," "New Ideas in Co-Ops" and "Strategy for Growth."

Another active group at the Institute was the youth council made up of high school age young people learning first hand the fundamentals of cooperative enterprise. A highlight of their activities was the publication of their own newsletter "The Coconutter." Despite their lack of knowledge in the cooperative movement, it is very important to involve young ideas; for it is new ideas that produce the survival plan of many businesses.

The outstanding contribution of the cooperative movement in satisfying the needs of the low income and under privileged areas of U.S. society was made evident at several sessions. The self-help opportunities offered within the cooperative; be it a buying club, housing cooperative or credit union establishing self respect within the individual. Established cooperatives must also recognize their social obligation to assist wherever possible these newly forming organizations. The Co-Op Institute provides this training for all types of cooperatives.

Registrar Reports On No Fix Tickets

Motor Vehicles Registrar

Richard E. McLaughlin today released the Fourth Annual Audit Report of the Registry on the "No Fix" Traffic Citation System covering the full year 1969. The State-wide system of tamper-proof citations for moving vehicle violations began on January 1, 1966.

McLaughlin pointed to a cumulative 4-year increase of 43 percent in citations since the "No Fix" system began, with 439,000 tickets written in 1969 as compared with only 308,000 in 1965, the last year before "No Fix" began.

Massachusetts cars and drivers increased by only 34 percent and 14 percent, respectively, over the same period of time.

The State Police led all enforcement agencies in citation insurance with 154,000 tickets written during 1969. Local Police Departments followed with an aggregate total for all cities and towns of 234,000 tickets. MDC Police issued 19,000 tickets while Registry Inspectors accounted for the balance with some 32,000 citations handed out to errant motorists.

Registrar McLaughlin said, "Overall, it is an excellent picture. It clearly demonstrates an upward trend in vigorous highway law enforcement in most communities. There are more cars, more drivers, more crashes and, tragically, more deaths each year. Certainly, there ought to be more traffic citations issued and I am glad to see that the audit shows we are doing exactly that."

Statewide, records showed that courts refused to issue complaints in only 1.4 percent of the cases. Brighton, Holyoke and Ipswich courts honored 100 percent of the police complaints sought. Lynn, Newton and East Brookfield courts, however, refused in excess of 4 percent of the complaints.

McLaughlin pointed out that only the courts may quash "No Fix" citations under the law.

Two-thirds of all poor live outside the central cities of metropolitan areas, according to "Changes in Urban America," a report issued by the U. S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Editorial Comment

A Miracle

Andover has witnessed some sort of a miracle this week. A new school has been delivered on time.

It has not come about without some considerable sacrifice on the part of some devoted residents of the community who have given of their time over the past several months to insure delivery for opening day.

It has become almost common practice, not only in Andover, but in most communities, to promise a new school for a specific date, only to realize as the day approaches, the building will not be ready for use.

As of today, although not completely finished, the 24 new classrooms of the West Elementary school addition were ready for the influx of pupils as another school year begins.

We have said, editorially, from time to time, that Andover is certainly fortunate to have devoted public servants, persons who are willing to give of time and energy to aid the town.

This has been proven by the building committee which supervised the construction of the West school addition.

The committee has met over 50 times since early spring. On-site inspections were made weekly. Members continually visited the site on their own free time to check on progress.

The project was subject to the usual problems, such as strikes, material shortages, etc., which continually plague creation of a new public building.

Despite the problems, youngsters were able to report to classes today as scheduled. There will be workmen in the building for weeks to come, but the classrooms are operating and the education process for hundreds of youngsters will be proceeding in a normal pattern.

Despite assurances by contractors and architects, a few months ago administrators and the building committee looked ominously at the possibility of having the building ready.

Today it is occupied thanks to the efforts of a devoted committee.

The members include James J. St. Germain, chairman; Mrs. Barbara Cornwell, secretary; John Avery, James Hamilton, Robert W. Hanson, Joseph W. Watson, Jr., Mrs. Leon Wilde, S. Abbott Batchelder and Neal Mitton.

Their work with the West project will not be complete for some weeks to come, but many will be turning their attention to a new project — providing an addition to the William A. Doherty school.

The school department would like to have this facility available by September, 1972. The committee has worked out a timetable to meet that date.

No doubt there will be obstacles.

But we, somehow feel, based on the performance shown in producing the West school, that the additional facilities for Central Andover will be ready on time.

The committee has indeed displayed the tenacity to see things through to successful completion and delivery on time.

Harmony

This past week has seen a return to harmonious relationship between the municipal administration and the fire department.

For almost a year, the firefighters and town manager have been in negotiation for a new contract.

The firefighters were without a contract since last September.

As the months progressed, the nerve ends of both the firefighters and administration officials became somewhat frayed.

Within the past few weeks relations were severely strained and a breaking point was nearing.

In the end the Finance Committee was able to get both sides together at the table and out of it came agreement.

There were misunderstandings along the way, all having been cleared away by now.

That the long negotiation session has now come to a successful conclusion is good for Andover.

The town has been fortunate in having been able to obtain and retain competent, well-trained firefighters.

With this new contract, good for two years, a harmonious relationship will exist once again among the members of the fire department and the administration.

We hope it shall always be that way.

School Days

Schools have resumed for another academic year amidst turbulent times.

Education today is one of the most important items in the life of every American.

In a world torn with dissent, distrust, sophisticated machinery, space exploration, etc. we must look to the young people to guide this nation on its future course.

This can only come from a proper education, initiated in primary grades, and continued through the advanced years.

There is today, a wealth of opportunity for America's youth. Not every young person is college bound. But each has innate abilities, needed to meet America's challenge in the years that lie ahead.

Americans in general have, over the years, displayed an apathetic attitude toward everyday life. It takes something to wake us up, now and then.

Education got that shot in the arm many years ago when Russia shot Sputnik into the atmosphere and launched the race for space.

From that point forward, educators went to the drawing boards to develop an educational process which would provide a well-rounded education for all.

In the public and private school systems, and the college campuses throughout the land, the improved education is being offered for those willing to be exposed to it, and learn from it.

We must in the years ahead, rely on the knowledge, the leadership, of this nation's youth, to guide this country.

The education they are receiving today will provide them with the knowledge and stability to carry on.

As another school year begins, we wish the students well and ask that they pursue their studies with vigor and success.

Too, we wish the educators success in their efforts to impart the knowledge to their students so vitally needed in these crucial times.

a result, what is needed.

We feel that Andover would be much happier with a low and moderate income housing plan that they were able to put together with care and patience, rather than one forced hurriedly upon it by a concerned federal government. Surely an economically diversified town would benefit all its citizens.

The Department of Labor estimates that about a quarter-million apprentices entered training during the period July 1, 1968 through June 30, 1969.

Off The Top Of The Desk

Andover certainly has an interest in dogs, noting that the past two or three annual town meetings have dealt with leash laws, animal control laws and amendments to the bylaws.

With this in mind it is interesting to point out that at last count there were 26,000,000 dogs in the United States, accounting for 40 percent of the pet population.

The information comes from the national 4-H dog care and training program which last year enrolled 87,000 boys and girls between the ages of 9 and 19.

There would appear to be sufficient vehicle transportation in Andover, according to figures released in the annual report of the Massachusetts Department of Taxation of Corporations.

In their excise tax report, the department records show that 14,617 vehicles were assessed in 1969 with a total valuation of $13,445,925.

Total excise tax levied was $718,488.27.

Andover firefighters had obtained sufficient signatures to place a question on the November state election ballot asking for a reduction in hours from 48 per week to 42. It has since been decided not to pursue the matter, but, they are not the only department in the state pondering such action.

Lexington firefighters have recently obtained sufficient signatures to put a similar question on the ballot, asking the townspeople to reduce their hours from 50.4 per week to 42.

Cigarette scares seem to last for just so long, according to the number of packages taxed in Massachusetts over the past several years.

In 1961, according to the Mass. Department of Taxation and Corporations, 702 million packs were taxed. A high of 735 million packs was reached in 1963. Lowest point was in 1968 when the department collected taxes on under 700 million packs.

But in 1969, the figures rose again, this time to 710 million.

Professional athletes and others have varying views on the new artificial turf applied to playing surfaces and also being used for landscaping homes and industries.

One comment on the matter came from Al Sherman in the state Department of Commerce, who said, "If a horse can't eat, I don't like it."

Noticed about town is a new practice of vandalism, namely spray painting of stop signs and parking signs and in some cases speed signs.

First, such action is a violation of the law and subject to enforcement.

Second, the practice makes for an unsightly appearance.

Third, the messages scrawled are not welcome, and alterations to signs could prove dangerous.

The sports world and one assumes most everyone mourns the passing of Vince Lombardi, coach of the Washington Redskins football team and formerly with the Green Bay Packers.

He was a taskmaster on the field, but a gentleman at all times. He had one desire, to be a winner.

What Knute Rockne was to college football, certainly Vince Lombardi was the same to professional football.

A U. S. Labor Department study indicates that there will be 16.5 million more people employed in the United States in 1975 than there were in 1965.

DON'T RUN OVER MY LITTLE GIRL!

"A few weeks ago I saw a little girl struck by a car as she tried to cross the street. I saw a father race toward her and hold her to him as she struggled in the agony of death. I saw the look of despair that came over his face. I could only offer a prayer that such a thing might never happen again.

"Today my daughter, who is six years old, started off to school. Her cocker spaniel, whose name is 'Scoot', watched her leave and whined his belief in the folly of education.

"Tonight we talked about school. She told me about the girl who sits in front of her, a girl with yellow curls, and about the boy across the aisle who makes faces; about the teacher who has eyes in the back of her head; about the trees in the school yard, and the big girl who does not believe in Santa Claus.

"We talked about a lot of things, some important, some unimportant.

"Now, as this is being written, she is sound asleep with her doll 'paddy' in her arms.

"When her doll gets broken, or her finger gets cut, or her head gets bumped I can fix them. But when she starts to cross the street, then Mr. & Mrs. Driver, she is in your hands.

"Much as I wish I could, it's not possible for me to be with her all the time. I have to work and pay for her home, her clothes and her education.

"So, Mr. & Mrs. Driver, please help me to look out for her. Please drive carefully. Please drive slowly past schools and at intersections. And please remember that sometimes children run from behind parked cars."

"Please don't run over my little girl."

Registration At Temple Underway

Temple Emanuel of Merrimack Valley, 101 West Forest St., Lowell, will hold registration for the new semester of its religious school on Monday evening, Sept. 14.

A Reform Temple, Temple Emanuel stresses a modern, exciting look at traditional subjects. The religious school, which meets on Sundays from 9:30 a.m. to 12 noon, holds classes for students from the first to tenth grades. Continuing courses through the intermediate and advanced grades the child is now equipped for an understanding of Jewish history and teachings in the light of present day living. Current events forms an integral part of the curriculum as does the formal study of Israel, a course on the Jewish life cycle, a historical look at Jewish holidays, and a sociological study of Jewish history. In the advanced grades the youth is exposed to great examples of Jewish literature from the Talmud to Isaac Bashevis Singer. An intensive program of comparative religious, as well as study of social and personal ethics, is carried on at this level. The children's creative talents are put to work not only in class but in special creative services and other artistic endeavors. Hebrew, of course, is continued and the knowledge begun is now deepened by Biblical studies and prayerbook analysis. Hebrew grammar is also studied. In the confirmation class (Tenth grade) the youths are prepared for the challenges they will meet in college. Rabbi S. Daniel Breslauer said that special interest groups are offered as elective to the children at this level.

All who wish more information or facts about the grades that most concern them should phone the Temple Office at 454-1372. The first day of classes will be Sept. 20.

Dynamo In Salt Marshes

The power generator that works silently now has reached peak production levels in the salt marshes

Search for the symbol of one-stop banking.

Look for the bank with the big blue M.

of New England.

The parts of the generator range from tall spartina grasses down to microscopic green plants. All are capturing and storing energy from the sun. For their role -- of which they are unaware -- lies in converting sun energy into a form that animals can use. They are the food factories that power life in the inshore waters.

The "dynamo" that captures sun energy in the salt marsh is the some chlorophyll that colors tree leaves green. It is the same green that colors water either a pleasant green when a balance of microscopic plants are present, or colors water a repulsive green when misdirected fertility causes algae to run riot in a population explosion. The human eye has evolved in a chlorophyll-colored world and accepts green as reassurance; the green light that signifies all is well.

But, back to the muck and mud where basic ingredients of life happen. The green salt marsh will become even more nutritious in a few weeks when frost kills the grass and turns it brown. The sea lavender, now blooming at the marsh edge, will dry into stiff candelabra. And, just before the frost hits, that most interesting of marsh plants, the glasswort, ceases its existence as a greenish pickle and blushes deep red.

The annual death of vegetation throws fuel into the life fires of the marsh. The sugars and starches and minerals gathered in summer by leaf blades become accessible to all marine life as time breaks down the brown leaves to fine particles, almost to powder.

Helping time with the breaking down process are everything from tiny bacteria to horse mussels. Once the fiddler crab was an important link, eating dead grasses and passing on the nutrients in minute particles. But pesticides have wiped out most fiddler crab colonies in New England.

The grass reduced to powder becomes fuel for pinpoints of life known as plankton. From there, the fuel passes up food chains to fish and ducks and mink and muskrats -- and on to man who eats fish and shellfish and ducks.

Lately this transmission belt has not worked as well as it did through millions of years. Man has knocked large units out of the machine, filling and paving marsh acres, gouging marinas into the marsh domain, dumping rubbish into salt creeks, spilling pesticides and other dangerous chemicals into rivers that flow into the marshes.

One might think that man had failed to recognize how much his own life depends upon healthy marshes.

How much oxygen is freed for his use by marsh plants. How thoroughly man's food supply from the sea depends upon the marshes.

Recently the League of Women Voters turned out an excellent small brochure that provides laymen with all the information needed to make decisions on the future of salt marshes. Entitled "Where the Rivers Meet the Sea,"

Expansion, Environment Priorities For Electric Co.

New England's electric companies are facing one of the most difficult challenges in the history of the industry. That of expanding their facilities fast enough to meet the burgeoning demand for power and protecting the environment while doing so.

The two goals would seem to be mutually exclusive, however, according to the Electric Council of New England's annual report on the industry, the year 1969 was one of considerable progress in both areas.

The report points out that during 1969 work was completed on the third Brayton Point generating unit located in Somerset, Massachusetts. This unit alone is capable of producing 625,000 kilowatts of electricity and its completion brings the total capacity of that generating station to 1,145,000 kilowatts.

1969 also saw work initiated on three important transmission lines between New England and other regions: a new line between New England and New York State; the longest (12 miles) underwater cable in the world which will connect Long Island and southern New England and a third line connecting New England with New Brunswick, Canada.

The report points out that these accomplishments are only part of a giant expansion program started in 1966 which includes over twenty new generating units and over 1,300 miles of transmission lines all to be completed by 1976.

Assuming that taxes continue to bear the same relationship to plant investment in 1976 as they did in 1968, the execution of this expansion program by the electric companies will generate about $162 million in new taxes annually for state and local governments.

While placing great emphasis on their expansion plans the utilities are quick to point to their record in the area of environmental protection. The report points out that the power companies are actively involved in programs to combat air and water pollution.

In addition the utilities are engaged, both financially and personally, in a variety of research and development projects which hold considerable promise for continued progress on environmental matters.

These projects include: flue gas treatment systems for the elimination of particulate matter and sulphur dioxide, smoke plume dispersal from tall stacks, a zinc-air battery for use in electric powered vehicles, and the development of a magnetohydrodynamic generator which could virtually eliminate air and water pollution.

The report covers many other aspects of the electric utility industry and is available through the offices of the Electric Council of New England in Boston.

Firefighters, Town Reach Agreement

Andover firefighters and Town Manager J. Maynard Austin have reached an agreement on a new contract.

The agreement was reached late last week, following months of negotiations.

While no figures were readily available, the agreement stipulates that salary increases will be retroactive to April 1.

Two particularly sticky issues were worked out late last week, one dealing with sick leave, the other with the length of time needed by eight firefighters to receive a step increase in salary.

Both issues were resolved to the satisfaction of the members of the firefighters union during the final negotiation sessions.

Both sides were brought together by the Finance committee at a special meeting last Wednesday night. The FinCom must act on a $25,000 request for funds to supplement the agreement reached by the parties.

Firefighters had obtained sufficient signatures to place the issue of reduction of hours from 48 to 42 per week. The question would have been placed on the November ballot.

It is believed that now with the negotiations having reached a successful conclusion, the issue will not go before the voters. Town Manager J. Maynard Austin reported that the schedule of hours will not be an issue, he understands, during the life of the present contract, which is for two years.

Atty. Gerald Lewis represented the firefighters during negotiations and Atty. James Grady of Quincy, assisted the town manager in the collective bargaining sessions.

The contract is expected to be formalized and signed within the next two weeks.

Curriculum Change At Merrimack

The incoming class of 1974 at Merrimack College will find greater freedom in the selection of courses in the areas of theology and philosophy. The new freshmen, while observing the general institutional requirement of 3 courses in theology, 2 in philosophy and 1 in either discipline, will encounter a wider range of offerings in electing courses in theology.

All students are expected to pursue a basic program of study which the current 1970-71 Merrimack College Catalog describes as The Phenomenon of Religion. The course aims to sort out the meaning of religion, revelation, faith and theology. Beyond this fundamental course the student is free to choose from a wide variety of electives.

Rabbi Dr. Samuel Fox, for example, will offer for the first time a new course entitled: Wisdom Literature and Contemporary Problems. Fr. George Lawless, O.S.A. has converted a new senior seminar into a lecture course on the subject of Sexuality and the Christian Tradition. The student has the further options of studying Christian-Marxist Dialogue, Religions of Asia, Judaism, and recent developments in Roman Catholic theology.

The Department of Religious Studies, under the direction of Rev. George P. Lawless, O.S.A. has a staff of 10 with theological backgrounds as diversified as Harvard, McGill, Villanova and Princeton Universities, together with the Catholic University of America. The department subscribes to more than 120 periodicals which are housed in the McQuade Library.

Recreation Planning Session

How do you envisage Andover Recreation Park and the Ponds area ten years from now? Can Andover provide opportunities for recreation for all ages in the community? Have you seen the 195 undeveloped acres the town owns and calls a park?

Townpeople are invited to attend a meeting sponsored by Town Manager J. Maynard Austin, Recreation Director Leslie Bartow and the Recreation Advisory Committee Chairman, Mrs. James Keck of the Planning Board on Sept. 17, 8 p.m. at Andover High School.

Stewart Allen, a professional planner, will be present to hear ideas from the public and to express some of his own for the development of this park.

Mr. Allen has been retained by the town manager to draw a long range plan for the park. Concepts expressed and agreed upon at this meeting will come before the voters at future town meetings so that Andover's park may be a recreation center for all.

Many local organizations have been contacted and urged to send representatives Sept. 17. Young people are especially welcome. There will be time for all to express themselves.

DR. SEIFERT

mands of its officials which is very good.

"The town is receptive to a variety of viewpoints, such as at town meetings, where issues are debated thoroughly and acted upon," Dr. Seifert noted.

The superintendent noted that he was fortunate in having a very capable staff and a co-operative one here in Andover and that the town has been able to hire and retain competent educators.

Very shortly, he said, the administration will be taking a look at the public school program and examining its needs, in view of modern day technology.

He said that quite possible a course in computer programming may be introduced at the high school. "This is part of today's education. If we are going to provide modern education, we are going to have to introduce these courses to get on the scoreboard."

"We are going to have to focus on the tools we are using today, and examine them in the light of what is needed to provide an up-to-date modern education for our youngsters.

"Things such as the computer, are here to stay," the administrator emphasized.

As to the general future of education in Andover, that will be covered in a master plan to be presented to the school committee next Tuesday night.

His philosophy behind the master plan is, "any administration has a responsibility to inform the school committee and the people of the town what the future needs for education are.

"The town pays an administrator well and should receive in return an outline of what is needed.

"The plan will outline these needs. I am as concerned as anyone over the high cost of living, but we must face reality.

"I think it is necessary to point out the needs of the community so that the residents won't be short-changed.

"The plan will be presented to the school committee and then discussed, along with sharing the report with the townspeople.

"Within the framework will be all phases of education, and will encompass such things as obtaining land and facilities. We must put aside land for future school use. Large tracts of land are needed and these are becoming scarce.

"Once all the items have been discussed and guidelines set, we'll go back to the drawing board and carve a future for Andover's education system.

As for new construction, Dr. Seifert feels that all things should be considered, including such items as portable classrooms. In this category he would like to see a portable laboratory type facility.

Such a facility could be shared among all schools, for instance a program could be carried out one day at the high school, another day at the junior high.

Among the frustrations of his initial year here, has been the lack of use of the public school buildings after school hours.

Many months ago, based on his philosophy that the townspeople spent millions to provide these buildings, thus they should have the right to use them during non-school hours, he offered the buildings to the town recreation department to conduct programs.

The offer apparently has never been accepted, since only the Student Activity Center at the high school, operated by the school department, functions nightly.

Dr. Seifert said he was not sure if the townspeople knew that the buildings were open to them. "It just takes a call to Jack Berberian, supervisor of general services, and the rooms are made available," Dr. Seifert states.

He is hopeful in the months ahead that more use will be made of the buildings by town groups.

Of particular satisfaction during the past year was his appointment as chairman of the education and prevention committee of the Greater Lawrence Drug Council.

While the committee has moved along slowly to date, the approaches have been good and it certainly will be a complement to the Greater Lawrence area."

As for drug abuse and sex courses in school, Dr. Seifert feels that the overall concept must be examined. At present such courses are available on a volunteer basis. "Many things should be taught in the home, but sometimes there is not the where-with-all to do so," he noted in regard to the particular problems.

As for sex education in the schools, Dr. Seifert commented, "One thing we should do is first of all find out what the youngsters already know about sex. We might just find out they know more than we do."

With a full year of accomplishment behind him, Dr. Seifert now begins another year, this one filled with knowledge of Andover and its needs.

These he will explain to the school committee and the town next week.

To the Commissioners of Essex County
Gentlemen:

The Manager of the Town of Andover in the County of Essex, Massachusetts, thereto, duly authorized, respectfully represents that the highway known as Lowell Junction Road, a public way laid out by the Board of Selectmen in 1968, crosses the tracks of the Portland Division of the Boston and Maine Railroad at grade, and that the security and convenience of the public requires that an alteration, not involving the abolition of the crossing at grade, be made in the crossing consisting of widening the present pavement and relocating one automatic flashing warning signal, all within the limits of the existing public highway, and all as shown on the attached plan.

WHEREFORE, they pray that after due notice and a hearing the County Commissioners, under authority of Chapter 159, Section 59, of the General Laws, may adjudge that such alteration is necessary, and prescribe the manner and limits within which it shall be made, all as in their judgment may be necessary.

Very truly yours,
S/J. MAYNARD AUSTIN

Registration Dates Are Suspended

Following a late conference with Governor Sargent Tuesday evening, Motor Vehicle Registrar Richard E. McLaughlin today announced that the Registry is eliminating the usual deadline dates by which registration renewal applications must be received at the Registry.

Formerly, the reserved 4 digit numberplate renewal applications had to be received by Sept. 30 and all other reserved annual basis registrations, including "vanity plates" were required to be in by Oct. 15. These deadlines are eliminated for the current year by the Registrar's action.

McLaughlin said, "Governor Sargent suggested this action because of the large number of motorists who are not yet sure that their insurance will be renewed for 1971 in time to meet the customary closing dates. We both feel confident that these renewal problems will have been resolved well in advance of Dec. 31, but, meantime, there is no point in trying to maintain administrative schedules which are, in the circumstances, quite impracticable."

Skidding accidents cause 10,000 deaths yearly. Knowing how to control a skid can be a life saver. Never jam on the brakes or step down on the accelerator. The most effective ways of regaining control are steering in the direction of the skid and stabbing the brakes.

END OF SEASON. Locking up for the final time as the summer season came to an end at Pomp's pond Sunday are lifeguards Dave Connors and Elaine Mahanke. The water recreation area proved a popular place, particularly during the hot spells this summer.

Vermont Community Shaping Up

Development of Quechee Village in Vermont is moving along and took another step forward recently with the dedication of a covered bridge as part of the several hundred acres development.

The area is being developed by Quechee Lakes Corp., of which L. John Davidson of Andover is chairman.

Two homes dating back to the late 1700s and early 1800s have already been restored and work is now underway on the restoration of an old woolen mill which will be used as a restaurant.

The development is located at the junction of Routes 89 and 91, between White River Junction and Woodstock.

The preliminary work of restoration is leading up to a new community consisting of approximately 2,500 homesites in acre or larger lots. There will also be five acre farmsites and condominiums.

The first nine holes of an 18-hole golf course are under construction and expected to be ready by 1971.

A twin chairlift is being installed for ski slopes.

Under another project, Dewey pond is being restored. The 100 acre lake has been inundated by sediment from floods over the years.

Davidson's corporation is a subsidiary of the CNA Financial Corp. of Chicago.

To Explain Views On Ambulance

A formal decision on how the selectmen will act on the proposed second ambulance for the town, will await a report from Town Manager J. Maynard Austin.

An article seeking $16,000 for a second unit has been inserted in the warrant for the October town meeting.

Austin has stated that he wanted time to study the matter and to sit down with the selectmen and make an explanation of his views prior to any decision being made. He will do the same with the Finance committee.

Austin is also going to come up with a proposed policy regarding ambulance service. Suggestions were submitted to him by the selectmen, who asked him to examine them and come up with some suggested policies.

Building Committee Commended

Town Manager J. Maynard Austin was high in his praise this week for the West School Addition Building committee.

Noting that it had been some time since a new school building was opened on time, Austin said that this sort of "miracle" was due to the "perseverance and diligence of a hard-working, devoted committee."

Although having construction problems during the several months of construction, the 24-room addition was expected to be ready for classes this morning.

The manager said, "this had been an extremely hard working committee. They have been meeting weekly, sometimes more to make every effort to deliver this school on time."

"They have been meeting with the general contractor and subcontractors, pushing these people to get the work complete."

"James J. St. Germain, committee chairman, has been at the site almost daily checking on progress and keeping abreast of things."

"He and all the members of the committee deserve a tremendous amount of credit."

While additional work is still needed before actual completion, the building is considered substantially complete and ready for occupancy.

Workmen will still be in the building but their activity is not expected to disturb classes.

About one inch of rainfall per week is necessary to keep a lawn from burning out. Thorough watering every 3 or 4 days is better than 15-minute sprinklings which will draw the roots to the surface where they become worn and dried,
